ICYMI: Donalds Joins Special Report On Real America's Voice

WASHINGTON – Congressman Byron Donalds (R-FL) joined Special Report on Real America's Voice to discuss the ongoing crisis at the Southern border, President Biden's failure to fight for the American people, and Senate negotiations regarding an amnesty bill.

Watch the full interview here.

That bill is dead on arrival in the House of Representatives:

“The Senate can negotiate whatever they want, but having seen some of the outlines from that negotiation, that bill is dead on arrival in the House of Representatives and let me tell you why. They want to canonize 5,000 people being able to come in per day. 5,000 people per day is a catastrophe. That’s about 150,000 people per month, about 1.8 million people per year. That’s terrible. Jeh Johnson, who worked under Barack Obama said that if you have 1,000 people per day, that’s a crisis. The Senate deal allows for 5,000 per day before any emergency procedures kick in, just based on that alone it’s a terrible deal. So, the Senate can pass what they want, that is dead on arrival in the House, Speaker Johnson has said that’s dead on arrival in the House. What is going to matter is H.R. 2, it’s what we passed. It actually secures our border, it gets that job done.”

America has seen enough:

"This is something that I've seen around the country. You have Democrats, you have independents, who are wondering why Joe Biden has prioritized Ukraine's border, he has prioritized a radical Green New Deal agenda, but he leaves our country wide open. He's left poor families, minority families, at the danger of these migrant groups that have just stormed so many cities in America. And their flummoxed, apoplectic, their mad, and I think they are going to take it out on Joe Biden. But, it's a bigger issue than that. You have somebody in the White House right now who's only desire was to ever have the Presidency, but no desire to fight for this country. America has seen enough of it."
